Hore, the heart that beneath is repuring, the surrow pursued to life's closing, Finds peace in its lenely retreating; Finds peace—when the heart comes beating!

We are here assembled to celebrate this place as a "field of God," as a "neutral ground," as a republic of the dead, as an arsenal of Heaven. Here only may we find a republic in the truest sense of the word; where all distinctions of rank or position, of age, of religion, of nationality, must disappear. The poor and the rich, the infant and the man gray with age, the foreigner and the native, the Christian and the unbelieving—they all will dwell here in peace together. Here the man who, flourishing with the power of manhood, thought himself strong enough to defy the elements, will bow before the mighty sceptre of Death, and he who looked down upon his fellow-man with pride and contempt will learn at the brink of the grave that the best patent of nobility consists in a faithful discharge of the duties of life. With what different sentiments shall both we and our offspring sists in a faithful discharge of the duties of life. With what different sontiments shall both we and our offspring enter this place? It requires not the eye of a seer or a prophet to describe. Here children will weep over the graves of their parents. The world will appear to them a disconsolate and desert wasto—a vale of misery, where all joys have ceased to bloom, until the words of conso-lation which have been proclaimed from the mouth of lation which into consecrated servant, that God who feeds the ravens, who clothes the lilies of the field, who counts the hairs of our heads, who was the father of their fathers, will also be their father, providing for and protecting them, so that they shall leave this holy place with feelings of consolation. Parents will weep at the graves of their consolation. Fareness will weep at the graves of their children, muttering against Providence who deprived them of the support of their age, until the spirit surrounding this consecrated spot shall have spoken to them as the Redeemer did at Nain and Capernaum, "Your children live; you shall see them again in a better world."

Through the dark days of life, In the storm and the strife,

Widows will weep at the graves of their husbands, despairing, in the bitterness of their grief, of God and man, until in this consecrated place the servant of God shall have spoken to them the words of consolation, "Your husband is living; there is another life to come, where you will meet again; the holy bond of love uniting the spirits cannot be broken by death." Reason will resume its power, and announce to them that the image of God, the spirit of man, so intimately related to his Maker—that Spirit who measures the course and the structure of the stars, who reduces worlds into systems, who puts the elements into chains, who sends the elequent lightning through the depths of the eccan, and brings minds into closer connexion—could not have been made for a short duration on this earth, and that there must be another world. Widows will weep at the graves of their husbands, de-

World.

Religion, too, will assert its rights over the symbols of faith, love, and hope.

Faith calmly points the glorious premised land, Where sympathetic souls walk hand in hand; Low tells the story that, in yonder -kies, Pate will no more dissever gentle thes; And that the holy beams of hope shall pour increasing light till sorrow be no more; For, past the desolate boundary of the tomb, Nature is payous in eternal bloom.

A collection was then taken up to aid in paying for the land and other necessary expenses, and whilst the stewards were making their rounds, a hymn was sung by the children in German. The performance was highly creditable to the children, and the proficiency which they evinced elicited considerable surprise from the audience At the conclusion of this exercise the Rev. Mr. Finckley delivered the following address in English :

We are assembled here, dear friends, according to an-We are assembled nere, dear friends, according to an-nonancement, to dedicate with appropriate religious ser-vices this field and grove as "Prospect Hill Cemetery," the property of the Union Benevolent Society of the German Evangelical church, of Washington city—to con-secrate or set apart these grounds as the place to which we design to transfer the remains of our departed friends we design to transfer the remains of our departed friends from the old grave yard, and to which we are to bring those who shall yet fall asleep in Jesus: yea, perhaps to be brought ourselves ere long, to rest from our labors till the Archangel shall sound the trumpet of the Resurrec-tion, and the Judge of all shall welcome us to our eter-nal home, "where the wicked cease from troubling, and the weary are at rest."

the weary are at rest."

The name we deem appropriate, as there opens to us a wide and beautiful prospect from the stand-point which we occupy, stretching away in the distance to the grave of the "Pater Patrix," at Mount Vernon, the resting place of the hero, the patriot and statesman so dear to all; and we consider our people fortunate in securing this place as "God's acre" for themselves, their friends and neighbors, "where the mourners who go about the streets of the city" may, with the patriarch, "bury their dead out of their sight," without reference to the name they bear or the denomination to which they belong. Yea, we deem them wise in making this selection, and engaging in an enterprise which supplies a vacuum hitherto not filled, but soon to be completed here. Here may the weary from the Fatherland repose in peace, and in the bosom of our common mother, Earth, may the home born or elsewhere born rest the mortal till they shall put on immortality, while the survivors are reminded to

"Think as those who fondly languish O'er the graves of friends they love; While their bosoms throb gith anguish They are warbling hymns above. While their silent steps are straying Lonely through night's deep 'ning shad Glory's brightest beams are playing Bound the happy Christian's head."

The nations of the earth have various modes in which they pay respectful tribute to the departed. The ancient Egyptians embalm their dead; the Hindoos burn them; the Jews entombed them; the Greeks and Romass gave them sopulture, or burned them, as they thought best; the Mohammedans bury them; but, since "life and immortality have been brought to light by the Gospel," Christians of all denominations bury their dead with suitable religious ceremonies. This we conceive to be the most becoming mode, and well calculated to make salutary impressions upon the hearts and minds of those who remain "when the body returns to the earth as it body returns to the earth as it was, and the spirit to God, who gave it;" and for this the burial place which we this day consecrate as "Prospect Hill Cemetery' is designed.

The society which I have the honor to represent intends to offer, on the most reasonable and liberal conditions possible, single grave and family lots of ground to all who may desire them.

In this city of the dead "the rich and the poor meet together," the Lord being the God and Father of all.

The lowly and the exalted are equal here. No contention and no discord shall disturb them in this quiet restation and no discord shall disturb them. ing place. And we most devoutly pray that no unhallowed foot or word or act may ever descente the sacred spot whereon we stand, "for this is holy ground."

At the conclusion of the Rev. Mr. Finckley's address, the solemn service of consecration was read in German, and the assemblage was dismissed with the benediction.

FAREWELL TO REV. DR. BINNEY.

A very interesting meeting was held last evening in the E Street Baptist church for the purpose of taking farewell of Dr. Binney, who leaves immediately for Burmah. The meeting was opened by singing a hymn, after which a prayer, brief but earnest, was offered by Rev. J. C. Smith; the fifty-second chaper of Isaiah was then read by Dr. Teasdale; and after addresses from Dr. Kingsford and Rev. Mr. Hill, Dr. Binney took an affec-tionate farewell of his Washington friends. In the course of his remarks, he strongly urged the claims of Columbia college, from the presidency of which he retires. The lateness of the hour compelled him to limit his remarks, and the audience thus lost many good things that he would have uttered, but his address was full of important facts, and its conclusion found the emotions of his hearers deeply stirred. While the audience sung the hymn Blest be the tie that binds our hearts," Dr. Samson adieu to their friend. The warm salutations of the many clergymen present, f every variety of opinion, added to a formal presentation of a Bible, must have been cheering to the departing missionary. In leaving Washington, Dr. Binney bids farewell to a host of friends who have learned to esteem him as a gentleman, a scholar, and a Christian.

If we might hint a most respectful word of suggestion to the clergy, and to all who have occasion to address the people when many are expected to speak, we should like to say, in the very kindest and most considerate way it can be put, that at such times brevity is the orightest jewel in the orator's diadem.

REMOVAL OF THE HORSE MARKET.—The chief of police as taken measures to remove all obstructions from the avenues, streets, and public reservations in this city, as directed by the act of the corporation, approved on the 2d inst., which was passed with a view of enforcing the last clause of the thirteenth section of the city charter. > THE DEBUT OF MISS COOMES. -This popular debutante made her first appearance before a Washington audience last night in Sheridan Knowles's comedy of "The Love Chase;" and although the gathering was not as large as the talent of the actress will hereafter invariably assemble, yet the thusiasm of those present must have been cheering to her and very encouraging to the management. Young and beautiful, she yet possesses that perfect control of her feelings and that graceful self-possession which mark incipient genius, and only require time to insure complete success. The comedietta "Our Wife" was rendered with great effect, and furnished an admirable conclusion of the night's entertainment. Miss Coombs appears tonight in "The Hunchback."

ACCIDENT TO THE STEAMER MT. VERNON.-The steamer Mount Vernon, of the Aquia creek line, on her trip up the river, on Saturday afternoon, when just above Alexandria, burst her cylinder. The steamer Thomas Collyer went alongside and took off her passengers and mail and conveyed them to Washington. A steam tug towed the Mount Vernon to her wharf.

FATAL CASUALTY. - We learn from the Alexandria Gaette that the locomotive attached to the down train on the Orange and Alexandria Railroad, on Saturday evening, when just above Culpeper court-house, struck and killed Mr. James Petty, of Culpeper. He was lying on the side of the track, with his head on one end of a cross tie, and when the cars came along the cow-catcher of the locomotive struck him on the right side of his acad, near the temple, killing him instantly.
